SPLENDOR UNRIVALED.

The Gold Dining Hall in the Imperial Palace at Moscow.

Here, after his coronation, the Emperor wears for the first time all the imperial insignia, dine amidst the nobles and receives the congratulations of his foreign ambassadors. This hall, built by Italian architects in 1491, has been restored during the present reign in a simple and archaeologically exact manner, and primitive mural paintings having been reproduced with the aid of ancient descriptions thereof in archaic style by possible image-painters. Around the pillar in the center of this hall is a series of shelves forming a buffet, on which the imperial plate is displayed on grand days during the visits of the Tsar. We are sorry to add that the inestimable treasures of ancient gold and silver plate which we marvel at in the glass cases of the treasury figure on the buffet, and are polished up for the occasion by the careless hands or lackeys. In vain the curators have been warned that this repeated rubbing diminishes the value of the objects, and will in the end materially damage them; the only answer that they give is: "Our father the Tsar is coming; the plate must shine brightly on the buffet."

The display of this collection of plate has always struck travelers who have witnessed the magnificence of the court of the Tsars. Margaret, a Burgundian Captain of the time of Boris Godunov, in his Etat de l'Empire de Russie (1649), gives a glowing picture of the rich collection of plate which was used in the daily service of the Tsar. The treasury, he says, is full of all kinds of jewels in great number, particularly of pearls; for in Russia more pearls are worn than in all the rest of Europe. There are great numbers of gold plates, large and small, and drinking-cups, besides this an infinite quantity of silver plate, gilt and not gilt, as may be judged from the fact that after the election of Boris Fedorovich, when he gathered his army at Serpukhov, during six weeks he feasted most days ten thousand men each time, and all were served in silver plate. Margaret mentions six silver barrels, a number of big bowls and basins of silver which required four men to carry them, each provided with drinking-cups, the whole of Russian plate. "Also a great number of silver pieces from Germany, England, Poland, which are either presents of princes sent by their ambassadors, or which have been bought for the rarity of the workmanship."

Olearius, who visited Russia in 1633, the narrator of Lord Carleton's embassy in 1633, Richard Chancellor, Sir Jerome Horsey, Dr. Giles Fletcher, Sir Henry Willoughby, and other early travelers, all testify to the marvelous wealth of the Tsar, and to the quantity of plate displayed on the "great cupboard," as they called the buffet around the central pillar of the banqueting-room. Richard and Chancellor says: "In the midst of the chamber stood a table or cupboard to set plates on which stood full of cups of gold, and among all the rest there stood four marvelous great pots, or urdens, as they call them, of gold and silver. I think they were a good yard and a half high. The number that dined there that day was two hundred persons, and all were served in golden vessels."

Sir Henry Willoughby, speaking of a dinner given by the Tsar, says: "In the middle of the dining-room was a table covered with cups of gold. The number of persons that dined was about two hundred, all served in vessels of gold, and the gentlemen that waited were all in cloth of gold."

PRETTY WORK-APRONS.

their Revival Will No Doubt Be Welcomed by Every Housewife.

The revival of the apron as a piece of dress is a part of modern fashion.
There was a time when the apron was in danger of being degraded into a mere accompaniment of kitchen dress, and the dainty fancy apron of old days was forgotten. These fancy work-aprons, worn by the women, and are welcomed by every housewife who prefers to keep the threads and scraps in place while she is sewing. A plain black silk apron of brocade and jet is the most pretentious form of work-apron. Simpler, prettier than this is a white apron of serim, with lines of drawn work run at intervals the entire length, with the narrowest feathers drawn ribbon in pale blue or rose color, and finished at the left side with a large stylish bow of wide satin ribbon.
Such aprons are merely held in full shirring on a half belt, and when worn are pinned on either side. A very dainty white apron is made of fancy plaided muslin in some pretty small pattern, and finished with a deep border of fine lace on the edge. The pretty hand-made lace which are crocheted and knitted for this purpose are as dainty as any thing. One of the most useful work-aprons has a pocket the entire width, to receive the work. It is best made of silk in some light, white and gray-blue or white and rose colors, the these colors will not show the threads.
Take a width of silk, and make a two-inch hem at the top. About eighteen inches from top make a fold the same width. Let the apron extend six or seven inches further than this, and turn up the bottom to this depth to make a pocket to receive the work.
Hem the top of the pocket in a two-inch hem and run a ribbon in it and the narrow fold at the back. Put a ribbon in the hem at the top. When the apron is on the pocket at the bottom receives the work, and it remains there when it is not on the top of the apron, being folded into this pocket, and the ribbons run in the folds are drawn, and the apron becomes a work-bag, which may be carried on the arm.
A black India silk is frequently made up with this pattern. Kitchen aprons should always be large enough to reach nearly to the bottom of the dress and cover the skirt at the sides and in front. A plain, straight apron is more useful than any fancy model for this purpose. -N. Y. Tribune.

CHINESE BURIAL PLACES.

Queer Modes of Sepulture Practiced in the Celestial Country.

The dead are for the most part buried, not as with us, in ground set apart for that purpose (though one frequently lights upon cemeteries duly chosen with regard to their "lucky" position), but they are simply laid down anywhere and everywhere. Few things strike the traveler more than the Chinese mode of sepulture. Burial mounds and coffins—the latter sometimes exposed in all their hideous bareness, at other times wrapped up in matting, like large chests of tea—meet the eye at every turn. The Chinaman, as is well known, maintains a sacred reverence for the spot where his relatives, and especially his ancestors, have been buried, and for his native locality as the religiously-cherished place of his own ultimate sepulture. With this, then, interferes with the sacredness of the spot, and with the ministering services of the "wind and water spirits," is looked upon as anathema. Railways are considered decidedly uncanny.
There is no denying the fact that there is also no denying that the reverence for the dead is only second to the reverence for the almighty dollar. This has been proved times without number in the neighborhood of the treaty ports where the foreigner has erected his own "uncanny" abodes, which frequently interfere with the "Fengshui" of burial places, or, as was often the case, necessitated the removal of the burial mounds or coffins; but a few dollars to the representative of the family almost invariably smoothed the difficulty. In a country, then, like China, where there are fertile plains of vast extent, and which, therefore, present few engineering difficulties in a country where the cheapest labor in the world exists in an inexhaustible supply —labor which, from the wonderful aptitude for acquiring proficiency in every Chinese man, would soon become skilled labor—the sum as which the Chinese assess the damage to the graves of their ancestors would add but a similous amount to the millions cost of the iron roads. It may be remembered that a few years ago a railway about eight miles in length was laid down between Shanghai and Woo-Sung, near the mouth of the Yang-tse-Kiang. It succeeded extremely well, so well, in fact, that the provincial authorities became alarmed lest the success might be used as a precedent and an argument for further construction, and it was brought from the British house which had constructed it, and then, to the horror of the foreign community, the rails were torn up and shipped to Formosa, on the shores of which they lay rusting at the present moment. This railway was carried through one of the most densely-cultivated districts I can across in China, but the "Fengshui" opposition was easily overcome. Besides, it is not impossible that the ver-million pencil itself may be called into requisition in the form of an edict dealing in a summary manner with the question of ancestor compensation—

CRISP SENTENCES.

From Blackwell's Howard's Novel,
"The Open Door."

It is easier to talk to work.
There are good reasons in psychology.
Young people should be ingenious.
A good rider should study his animal.
It would be so beautiful to be needed.
Be intelligent, but on no account original.
It is a crime for a human soul to sell itself.
Happily great hate is even rarer than great love.
Don't run about appealing to people's better natures.
The great world people have little time for sentimental friendship.
How society takes a thing, is more important than the thing itself.
A fool could make a wise man uneasy, if he looked at him long enough.
It is as difficult to realize another man's passion as his rheumatism.
One may be as harmless as an old mule, but one does not like it thrown in one's face.
Every body must care for his neighbor's opinion, whether he care for his neighbor or not.
Lovers may not amount to much, but they are more interesting than most things women talk about.
Society does not like a young person to act like an old maid, or a blue stocking, or be instructive or superior.
Wealth of the Navajos.

The Navajo tribe of Indians, located on a reservation of Northwestern New Mexico, are becoming wealthy in herds and flocks. The tribe now owns 245,000 horses and ponies; mules, 300, 000; cattle, 3,500; sheep, 830,000; goats, 300,000; burros, 500. Some of the Indians, it is said, are exchanging their herds for land, which will largely increase their holdings of the latter kind. The last wool clip amounted to 1,200,000 pounds and besides they sold 300,000 sheep pelts and 100,000 goat skins. When it is considered that there are but 6,500 males over eight-teen years of age it is evident that these Indians instead of being poor are pretty well off, at least in the world's goods. It is claimed by the Indian Office that the Navajos are well on the road to civilization, and that never in their history have they approached so near the degree of prosperity that surrounds them to-day.

To Avoid the Single Tax.

Old Maid—Is there any chance of Henry George's single tax becoming a law?
Old Bachelor (suspiciously)—Why do you ask?
Old Maid (coyly)—Nothing much, only there is a way for single folks like us to avoid it.
How?
By—getting—[But he was gone before she could get any farther.]—Texas Siftings.

Some people will continue to shake with chills and try to cure them by taking Quinine, at the same time run the chance of losing their hearing.
Buckner Leavell, Hopkinsville, Ky., agent for Christian County.

Mr. Buckner Leavell, our leading Druggist, always awake to the interest of his patrons and general public, has just succeeded in securing the agency for Radan's Microbe Killer. Owing to the large demand for this medicine the manufacturers will not be able to ship his stock for several days. He has several orders already for the medicine, so place your order so you can receive it out of this first shipment or you may have to wait for several weeks.

WIGS AND WIG-WEARERS.

The Effect of Distinctive Dress Upon Personal Authority.

I am a believer in wigs, provided the wig does not attempt to lie and deceive you into a belief that it is the real natural covering of the head. It is the wig's attempt at deceit which makes it contemptible and ridiculous. When it boldly says I am a wig, and not a counterfeit head of hair, it is as respectable as any other head-dress, and may be quite as becoming. For instance, a handsome King Charles wig is certainly as becoming as a stove-pipe hat, and on an official head, a wig has something imposing. I doubt if any judge would so sternly typify Themis with his natural hair as he is covered with his wig. Persons in high offices who personate powers should not appear in their common dresses. In my opinion, a judge in his shirt-sleeves may be as just and able as one in his robes and wig, but he will not have the same authority.
Think of a Cardinal in knickerbockers and a dress coat! Has he not lost his impressiveness and influence by the change of his dress? Dress is as necessary for the body as language for the mind. It is, I can not but think, a great mistake in America that the judiciary have no official robes to distinguish them on the bench, not only for the dignity which these give to the office, and for the influence they exert on the public, but for the effect they produce on the mind of the judge himself. A man in official robe can not but feel that he is, to a certain degree removed from his ordinary personal relations of common life; that he becomes a representative of the office, and bound to its duties.
We admit, in the army and navy, that dress, uniform and distinctive badges restrain personalities and give authority, and compel the wearer to a becoming and conduct appropriate to his position. So, we recognize the appropriateness and impressiveness of costume in the church. Why is this not true in all other official positions in life? Why does it not equally apply to judges and advocates and all the officers of a court? American ministers at foreign courts are now prohibited from wearing the distinctive diplomatic dress ordained by custom of all other nations. But on what sufficient ground? It is asserted that such distinctive dresses are not republican. Why? Is not one dress as republican as another? It is, in my opinion, simply an offense against good manners thus to fly in the face of the world, and reject the usages of diplomacy. One might as well insist that it is not republican to put on the recognized dress coat at an evening reception or ball. A gentleman simply conforms to the usage of the society he frequents, and he wears the dress worn by others; he does not seek to render himself conspicuous among them by singularity of costume, nor tactically to criticize their good taste by adopting a different dress.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Hopkinsville Kentucky.

CHAS. M. MEACHAM, Editor.
FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1889.

No wonder Sunset Cox died. He had six doctors.

The New Jersey Democrats have re-nominated Gov. Abbott by acclamation.

Eleven men were drowned in a flooded coal mine near Golden, Colo., Monday morning.

Sixty-nine counties have been counted so far, which gave the constitutional convention a majority of 21,876.

The Sunday Gazette, of Washington, a Republican paper, says John G. Carlisle is the most intellectual American in public life.

The count has been completed in West Virginia and Fleming, Dem., has a majority of 212 of the legal votes cast for Governor.

Riddleberger has taken the stump for the Democratic ticket in Virginia, which is so far the most discouraging feature of the campaign.

There are eleven candidates for the Democratic nomination for clerk of the court of appeals and the election is still eleven months off.

Tanner, Commissioner of Pensions, resigned Wednesday at the request of the President. It is believed Mr. Wm. Warner, of Kansas City, will succeed him.

If Jno. L. Sullivan runs for Congress he will have to fight under new rules. There will be no umpire and he will have to knock his opponent out on the first round.

Gov. Buckner has ordered the Lexington and Harrodsburg companies of State Guards to Harlan county to protect the court at the trial of the Howard gang.

There are no candidates for chaplain of the coming Republican House. It is a hard lot to pray for, but some preacher ought to be found to tackle the job. They will need it.

A Barren county debating society has decided that the steam engine is of more advantage than the printing press. It is now in order to tackle the married and single life problem.

The last request of a negro recently hung in Arkansas was that he be permitted to eat a watermelon just before going on the scaffold. He ate it and died. Watermeloncholy fate!

The editors of the Paducah News, the Bourbon News and the Barbourville News all entered into the matrimonial state last week, which leads the Union Local to remark that the aforesaid editors were engaged in "Spreading the News."

The South Dakota Republicans have nominated Mr. Dollar for attorney general. When the new State officers repair to the capital Mr. Dollar hopes to be one bent, but the Democrats should show him no quarter.

Five Congressmen-elect have died since last November, viz: Burnes, of Missouri; Gay, of Louisiana; Townsend, of Illinois; Laird, of Nebraska; and Cox, of New York. No political changes in the complexion of the House will result from these deaths.

During the next volume Century is to have an illustrated series of articles on the French Salons of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, including pen portraits of many of the leaders and a detailed account of the organization and composition of several historical salons. A great number of interesting portraits will be given with the series.

"Jack the Ripper" has added another victim to the long series of mysterious Whitechapel murders. The nude body of a woman was found lying on the street in London Monday night, in plain view of a host upon which a policeman passed every fifteen minutes. The head and limbs had been cut off and carried away and the stomach ripped open like all the rest.

Samuel Sullivan Cox, the widely-known Congressman of New York city, died at his home Tuesday evening and in his death the country lost one of its purest public men and the Democratic party one of its ablest and best equipped statesmen. "Sunset" Cox, as he was called, had been in Congress for nearly 26 years. He was 65 years of age and had achieved distinction as a lawyer, politician, diplomat, author and orator. He was famous the world over as the greatest humorist of the American Congress, but when occasion demanded he could lead in sound reason and unanswerable logic, and his party can ill afford to lose him at this time. His death creates a vacancy in the Lower House of Congress which may be captured by the Republicans, as it was in a great measure the personal popularity of "Sunset" Cox that has made his district so strongly Democratic.

Syrup of Figs.
Produced from the laxative and nutritious juice of California figs, combined with the medicinal virtues of pure glycerine, it is the most beneficial to the human system, acts gently on the kidneys, liver and bowels, effects a permanent cure of constipation, and is a habit-forming medicine.

SUNSET FOX DEAD.

Congressman Samuel S. Cox, of New York, died Tuesday evening aged 65 years. He had but recently returned from a trip to the new States and while stopping in Washington City contracted malarial fever. This developed into acute pneumonia, which carried him off in a few days. Funeral to-day.

THE PENSION ROLL.

Enormous Increase in the Expense of Supporting Ex-Soldiers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The increase in the pension list since 1873 is startling and extraordinary. In 1873, the number of pensioners was 99,804; in 1882, 173,138 and in 1888, 323,620. These figures do not comprise any but the army invalid pensioners. The whole number of pensioners on the rolls in 1888 was 425,558, an increase of 46,550 in the year.

Since the close of the war, the annual pension appropriation has grown from $11,000,000 to $102,000,000, and next year congress will be asked to appropriate $115,000,000. The aggregate of pensions paid since the fiscal year 1865 is $1,054,000,000, or one-half of the whole cost of carrying on the war. At the present rate of increase in the pension list, less than ten years it will cost the government $250,000,000 annually to pay the pensions.

Sam'l O. Graves Dead.

Mr. Sam'l O. Graves, editor of the Standard and Times, Lebanon, Ky., died at that place Monday Sept. 9th, after an illness of three days. His death was the result of blood poisoning and he was in the 37th year of his age.

Mr. Graves was born near this city and spent his youth and early manhood here. Upon reaching maturity he studied law and was for a while in partnership with Hon. John Feland. About ten years ago he went to Louisville and practiced law until 1884, when he took a position with the Evening Times. Subsequently he worked on the Courier-Journal and the Sunday Argus and a year or two ago went to Lebanon and bought a half interest in the paper which he was editing at the time of his death. He was married several years ago to Miss Eliza McCarroll, of this city, who with one child, a bright little boy, survives him. He has a large circle of friends in Hopkinsville, who will deeply regret his taking off while yet in the prime of life. The Louisville Times, whose editor was his personal friend, paid him the following tribute:

Sam Graves is dead! It is with a deep sense of personal and professional loss that we print the announcement. Talented, cultivated, with the tenderest sympathies and an intellect at once subtle and broad, he has been true to himself as to all other men, there are no heights in law or journalism to which he might not have reasonably aspired. But take him all in all, and just as he was and will ever remain in the memory of those who came within the charmed circle of his womanly gentleness and many force, and who among his associates of the Bar or Press shall depart, leave behind him more virtues to be recorded, fewer faults to be forgotten. Peace, perfect and perpetual, to his gentle spirit!

Too Many Fires.

PRINCETON, Ky., Sept. 10.—J. H. Brown, of the late firm of Keville & Brown, of this place, was arrested and brought before County Judge Allen to-day, charged with firing his own dwelling last Saturday. The proof is circumstantial, but very strong. Brown and his wife were visiting her father, W. S. Randolph near here Saturday, Brown was seen by several at his residence in town, and in thirty minutes after he left fire was discovered in the house, which was securely fastened. On breaking it open it was found to have been set on fire in three different places, and was gaining good headway, but was finally extinguished, after considerable damage had been done. Brown has $1,600 insurance on his furniture. The house belongs to Machen Bros. Brown is not engaged in any business at present, having been burned out a short time ago. After he was burned out, creditors attached all the insurance, and he and his brother bought out H. M. Jones' dry goods store and were to take possession September 1. Failing to do so, he forfeited $500. A few nights prior to September 1, Jones' store was burned. Heretofore Brown has borne a good reputation, and his many friends dislike to admit that suspicion is against him in his last case, yet public opinion seems to be generally in that direction.

The grand jury this week investigated the case of Lewis Merritt, the boy who had a difficulty with Prof. Dietrich, superintendent of the public schools in this city, some months ago. It will be remembered that a pistol in the hands of young Merritt was fired in the school room, but it was claimed at the examining trial that the shooting was not intentional. The grand jury heard the statement of the principal witnesses and declined to find an indictment.

Circuit Court News.

The Stanley Case Occupies all the Week.

Winston Henry and A. H. Wallace were excused from further service on the grand jury Monday and Dr. E. R. Cook and J. M. Starling put in their places.

The case of Harmon and Ranzie Stanley, manslaughter, was begun Monday and the following jury empaneled: Milton Meacham, Ed Payne, A. M. Campbell, Morris Cason, col., W. A. J. Martin, Foster McCann, Wainright Lewis, Jno. T. East, O. S. Stevens, W. S. Witty, Milton Haley and R. C. Morefield. Argument was begun in the case yesterday morning, Mr. D. L. Johnson opening for the defense. Mr. Jas. Breathitt for the defense and Messrs. Payne and Garrett were also to speak. The case was expected to go to the jury last evening. The indications point to a hung jury.

No civil matters disposed of this week.

The Court of Appeals on Tuesday dismissed the case of Robinson's Administratrix vs. the L. & N. Railroad Co. from this county. Ed Robinson, col., was killed on the railroad and a verdict of $5,000 was obtained in a suit for damages. An appeal was taken and pending the appeal the case was compromised for $2,000. Hence the dismissal.

MATRIMONIAL.

Mr. Matt Winfree, of this county, and Miss Mabel Fallon, of Henderson, were married on the 10th inst. The Henderson Journal of Wednesday says:

"Yesterday at noon at the residence of P. H. Cunningham, Mr. M. F. Winfree and Miss Mabel Fallon, were united in marriage by Rev. Mr. McDonald. After receiving congratulations of their many friends of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Winfree left for Hopkinsville, where a reception was given to the couple last night. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Cunningham, Miss Carrie Winfree, Mary Rogers, of Fairfield, Ill., Meta Lane, of Birmingham, Ky., and George and Alex. Warfield.

Mrs. Winfree is the daughter of Geo. W. Fallon, of the Ohio Valley railroad, and is very attractive and popular in her circle of friends. Mr. Winfree is a leading merchant of Oakes, Ky., and is very influential in his community.

Miss Anna King, of the Beverly neighborhood, will be married next Thursday to Mr. Lowry Leigh, of Texas. The ceremony will take place at Olivet church in the afternoon and the bridal couple will at once depart for Texas.

Mr. Samuel Mims, of Trenton, Ky., and Miss Jessie Whitfield were married Tuesday at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Mack Whitfield, in Clarksville, Rev. W. R. Peebles officiating.

Mr. J. C. Harlan and Miss L. H. Simons were married on Sunday last, at the home of the bride, in Pembroke, R. V. T. E. Tiller officiating.

THE CRAFT.

W. J. Ewing has become managing editor of the Nashville American. The Clinton Graphic has been moved back to Fulton and its name changed to the Fulton Graphic.

On Wednesday, September 11, 1889, Virginia Hutchens, reached his sixtieth annual milestone on the road of life, having been born in the year 1829. He has been "at the case" and in the editorial profession since 1859, or fifty years. How many men are now living in the "press gang" of Kentucky who have given half a century's service in the cause of Democracy and the people?—Fulton Argus.

BEVERLY.

BEVERLY, Sept. 11.—Mrs. A. H. Watkins returned on the 8th inst. from a pleasant visit to relatives in Cadiz.

Mrs. M. E. Wills has returned home, after a protracted visit to relatives in Virginia.

Mrs. Waggoner and daughter, of Mississippi, are visiting Mrs. C. T. Mason, the former's sister.

Mrs. W. K. Perry and son Jose, of Birmingham, Ala., will make their future home with Mrs. C. T. Mason. Mrs. Perry is also the latter's sister.

Mr. John D. Jones is the happy father of a ten pound boy, which visited his family on the 10th inst.

Mr. C. T. Mason has received his steam plow which is doing excellent work; the engine pulls six plows, saving the expense of four men and twelve mules.

Prof. P. A. Skehan, one of the best mathematicians in the state, is teaching at Beverly Academy. He has about forty pupils and more will attend when the tobacco crops have been cut.

Several farmers are cutting corn, which they say is yielding very well; one can also hear the sound of the knife, while the sons of Africa are saying Sir Walter Raleigh's favorite word.

Rev. Mr. Peters commenced a protracted meeting near Herndon on the 8th inst.

REGENCY.

For the sake of a deserving young high minded bachelor, we will beg space to note that the charming young widow, Mrs. M. E. Elliott, will not return to Clarksville to reside.

Miss Mattie Buckner is teaching school at Mr. E. W. Steger's, teaching in the same school room she taught in last session.

Rev. J. W. Venable will leave to-day for Columbus, Ohio, to attend the annual meeting of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the I. O. O. F., of which body he has been Chaplain for 21 years. He will be gone two or three weeks.

ANTIQU.

Antioch, Ky., Sept. 8.—Mr. B. R. Yancy and son Jack, of the Point neighborhood, put Monday night with the family of Mr. R. S. Ralston. Miss Lennie E. Newman's school, at Hayslick's school house, is progressing nicely. She has about sixty enrolled.

There is about half a crop of tobacco in this community and two crops of worms on it.

Mr. Wesley Littlefield and Miss Mattie Courtney eloped to Clarksville and were united in marriage on the 4th. They were accompanied by Mr. Dock Littlefield and Miss Emma Courtney. They returned at 7 o'clock and were met with a happy welcome at the groom's father's, Mr. Jas. Littlefield.

If this escapes the waste basket, I will write again.

THE JOLLY OLD MARINER.

A jolly old mariner sailing the seas,
Was caring a solo and singing a ditty,
"Our ship is as bold as an eagle on wing,
And she carries a cargo that is a sight to see,
A cargo that is as precious as gold,
I think there'll be a change of weather."

In Haverhill, Mass., August, 1829, Cotton K. Simpson, of Pembroke, N. H., To Miss Sarah R. Marble.
An old calculation of gains and loss, Proves "a stone that is rolling will gather no moss."

A happy event has lately been thought on,
By which the jolly old mariner and his crew,
Have been united in a holy matrimony,
And now the jolly old mariner is a husband.

Married at Washington, Ky., March, 1814, Mr. Samuel January to Miss Pamela January.

A cold match.
At Black Lake, L. I., February, 1828, James Anderson to Miss Ann Breen.

White toast the lovely graces spread,
And love around the altar was shed, I'll be contented with Ann Breen,
And not have any but her.

In Bethel, Conn., August, 1819, Mr.
John Bates, of Williamstown, Mass., To Miss Mary Ann Bass, of the former place, after a courtship of one hour.

"This is not an angelic wife, I say, Such tender love to take!
He sought in one short hour a bliss;
The bliss, though, caught the bait."

Married—At Williamsburg, on Friday, April 15, 1833, by Rev. Mr.
Malone, at St. Peter's Church, Mr. W.
Moon to Miss Anna Cooke.

He is not dead, though lunar light His breath did overlook, For he gained to his delight,
A wife that is a comfort.

His good is cooked, and other odds Will e'er be his boon, Whose tail and tushes he wished and got The bright man in the moon.

In New York, March, 1832, Mr.
Thomas A. Secord to Miss Cordelia Ketchum.

"Ketchum Cordelia, if you can,"
"I have," says she, "Record the man."
Married at Bridgeport, December 16, 1878, Captain Thomas Baxter, of Quincy, aged sixty-three, to Miss Whitman, of the former place, aged fifty-seven, after a long and tedious courtship of forty-eight years, which they both sustained with uncommon fortitude.

In Concord, N. H., February, 1825, by Rev. Dr. McFarland, Solomon Payne, of Canterbury, Conn., to Miss Ruth Barker, daughter of Lemuel Barker, of this town.

Some females fall in love with wealth,
Some with a lovely avow;
But Sarah, in the midst of health, Took to herself a partner.

In Concord, October, 1809, Jeremiah P. Raymond, of Weare, to Miss Susan Gale.

A constant Gale forever prove,
To fan the flame of virtuous love.

In Boston, April, 1821, by Rev. William Sabine, Joseph Willcutt to Miss Susan Whitman, after a tedious courtship of thirteen days, and but thirty days after the death of his former wife.

The best way it seems for a deep sorrow
To seek a wife to marry another.
In West Springfield, Mass., December, 1828, Stephen Bumpsey, aged seventy-six, a Revolutionary pensioner, to Miss Sarah Dewey, aged thirty-eight.

In 76 he fought and bled;
At 76 he was wed.

In Washington, May 17, 1834, Joshua Peck to Miss Amelia Bushel.

A husband changed into a Peck.

June 25, 1815, in Carroll County, N. C., by Rev. B. Graves, Captain Wm.
Graves, son of John Graves, Esq., to Miss Sarah Graves, daughter of General Asahel Graves.

The graves, 'tis said,
Will yield the soil,
When claret's trumpet shakes the skies,
And God's angels come to dine.

From Graves like these A living folk may rise.

In West Springfield, Mass., May 23, 1821, John W. Honey, Esq., to Mary S. Austen.

From sweet fables the busy bee Can scarce a drop of honey gather;
But he, who swarms a flower in love,
Will turn to honey altogether.

A REMARKABLE TRICK.

How a Stranger Robbed the Frequenters of a Southern Race Track.

"I never hear any horse talk," said the judge, with a retrospective stroke of his frowning gray whiskers, "without thinking of a race I once witnessed at Yazoo City, Miss., nearly twenty years ago. A man who owned a beautiful sorrel gelding had matched it against a fine brown horse owned by a stranger, a breeder from some neighboring State.
Very few people had bet on the brown excepting his owner, and the consequence was that the very first start out to see the race—which was for a stake of $1,000—had a direct financial interest in the sorrel's success. I was chosen one of the three judges, and I was determined that the fairest of fair play should be had. The race was to be run in mile heats, best two in three. Well, the horses came out on the track, and the excitement ran high. The animals' owners were their jockeys, and both rode well.
The first heat was a great race, but the sorrel beat the best of it. There was the usual wait, during which the owner of the brown horse took occasion to make a few more bets, of course securing long odds. Then came the second heat, and the sorrel, which plainly showed the effects of the first heat, was beaten by a neck. The third heat was an easy victory for the brown, the sorrel being badly played out by his two previous efforts. We duly made our decision for the brown horse in the stakes, and some thing like five thousand dollars in bets. Every body in town was mad clear through, but when the truth came out, the word 'fury' did describe the condition of the public temper. It transpired that the stranger owned two brown horses, so like each other that they might have been twins. Neither one of them was as good an animal as the sorrel, but he had raced with them alternately, bringing the fresh horse out for the second heat, and the first one, well rested, for the third. Of course, he had an easy thing of it, and not one of our amateur judges was smart enough to detect the trick. His stable boy was the only sharer of his confidence, and I suppose he was well rewarded. The stranger was smart enough to jump the town, horses and all, by the first train after the race, or he would have been lynched. As it was, the judges came near being mobbed."—Chicago Journal.

DISPERSING A TRAMP.

What Happened to the Twisted Individuals Who Tried It.

I was eating dinner at a farm house in Indiana when one of the children came in and announced that a highway tramp had called at the kitchen door and asked for a bite to eat. The farmer was a very short, very fat, and very bald-headed man, and he was postmaster at the corner and justice of the peace in and for the county. He had a son called James, another called Moses, and a hired man who was addressed as Towner. He sent out word for the tramp to sit down and eat, and as a laugh went round the table he explained:

"After dinner I shall be pleased to show you how we encourage tramps in this section. This is evidently a new man to this part of the State, or he would never have called here."

After dinner, we went out. The tramp was sitting under a cherry tree, looking as comfortable as you please, and evidently unsuspicious that any thing except dinner was in store for him. He looked to me like a bad man to fool with, but the farmer didn't seem to read him that way.

"Now then," said, as he rubbed his fat hands together, "you will stand up."

"What for?" asked the tramp.

"To be kicked!" I am going to boot you from this spot down to that alver-dine telephone pole."

"But object?"

"Can't help that. As a fourth-class post-master of the United States of America I command you to arise."

"If I am kicked somebody else will get hurt!" cautioned the tramp as he got up.

"As one of the justices of the peace in and for this county I command you to disperse!" said the farmer as he turned the tramp toward the gate and administered a kick.

Next instant he received a left-hander on the nose which knocked him into a confused heap on the grass, and the tramp got out of his old coat and prepared for business.

"Towner, pulverize him!" shouted the farmer, as he struggled to his knees.

"In the name of the United States I command you to knock him down."

Towner advanced, his big fists doubled up, but the tramp dashed to the right and the left, and then sent in one on the hired man's commissary department which doubled him up, and laid him among the hollyhocks.

"James, Moses, make him prisoner!" yelled the old man, as he plucked a handful of grass, and held it to his bleeding nose.

The tramp chuckled. There was fun ahead.

Two boys were strapping young fellows, strong enough to knock down an ox, and they were willing to go in.
As they stripped off the tramp backed up between two current bushes, where they could not flank him; and as they advanced upon him he grinned all over. He played with them for a minute or two, and then drew a long breath, made three or four feints, and put them on the grass together. Neither moved to get up for full two minutes. Meanwhile the tramp rested and looked over to me and queried:

"You ain't one of the crowd?"

"No."

"And don't want me to disperse?"

"Not particularly."

"All right. I don't think the United States and his gang want any thing more of me just now, and as I have an engagement down the road, I'll move on. When they get washed up and the bandages on tell me I used to scrap with some of the fellows in days gone by, and that I held myself in and let 'em off very mild. Good-bye, stranger!— Ta, ta, old fatty!"

And he had been gone ten minutes before the postmaster came over to me and whispered:

"Did you ever?"—N. Y. Sun.

The tramp works at Essex.

From the last report of Kappa's establishment at Essex, it appears that in 1833 there were only nine workmen, and in 1838 seventy-four. In July, 1888, the establishment employed 20, 951 men, of whom 13,625 were at Essex, including the families of the workmen, who support a population of 79,969 souls, of whom 24,193 live in houses provided by the firm. There are at Essex 1,195 families of various construction, 255 bachelors, 92 steam engines, with a total of 27, 000 horse power, 1,721 different machines, and 311 cranes. Of coal and coke 2,735 tons are daily used, and 11 high pressure of a latest construction produce 600 tons of iron per day—Chicago Tribune.

A Prompt Decision.

He entered a store on Michigan avenue the other day, walked straight up to the proprietor, and in a voice of full conviction he asked the question: "Can you give me fifteen minutes of your time, sir?"

"No, sir," was the reply.

"Can you spare ten minutes to investigate the merits of my flying machine?"

"I can not."

"Will you give me five minutes in which to convince you that you ought to subscribe for ten shares of my stock?"

"No, sir."

"Good-day. I like a man of business. I fly."—Detroit Free Press.

A Lady in South Carolina Writes:

My labor was shorter and less painful than on two former occasions; physicians astonished; I thank you for "Mother's Friend." It is worth its weight in gold. Advise The Bradfield Reg. Co., Atlanta, Ga., for particulars. Sold by all druggists.
